

FOOD WEB

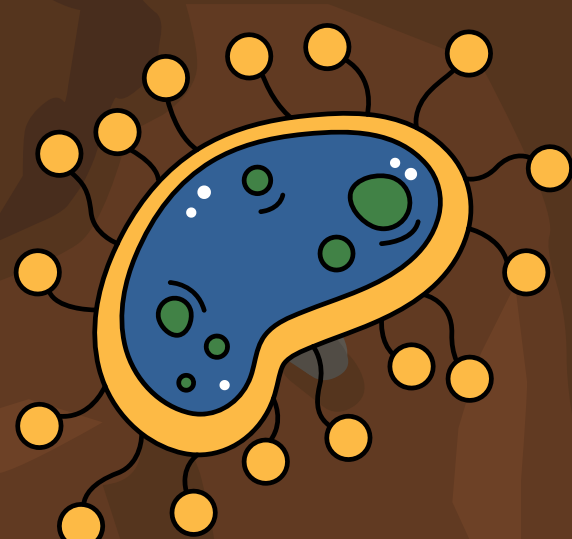

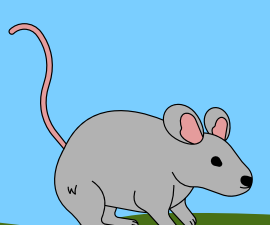

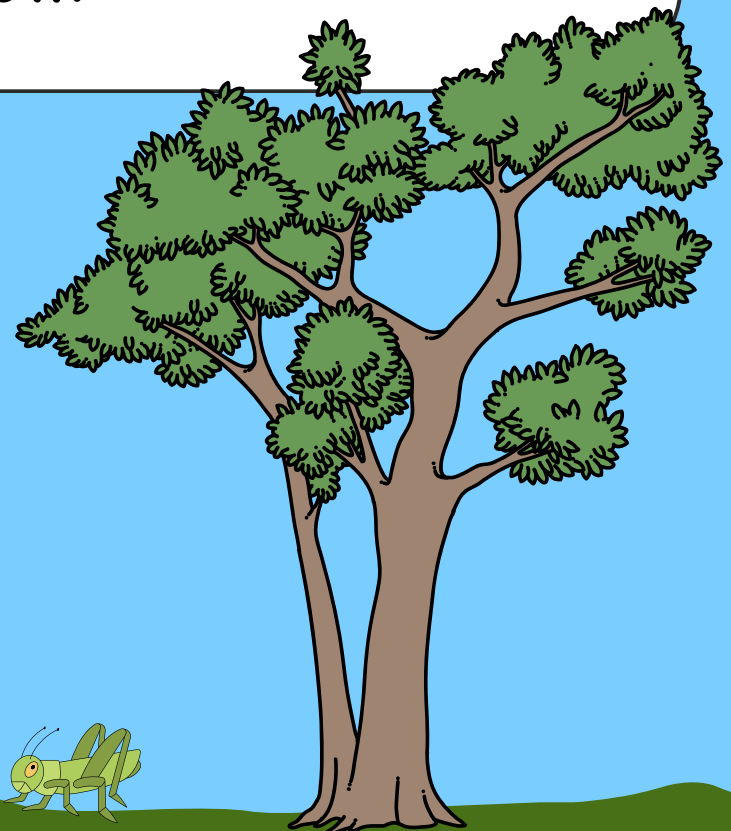

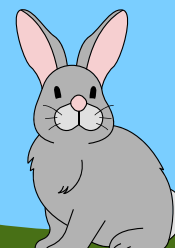

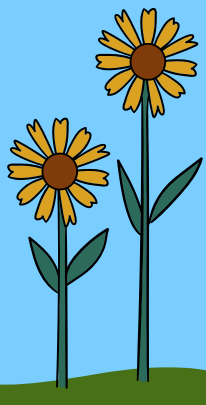

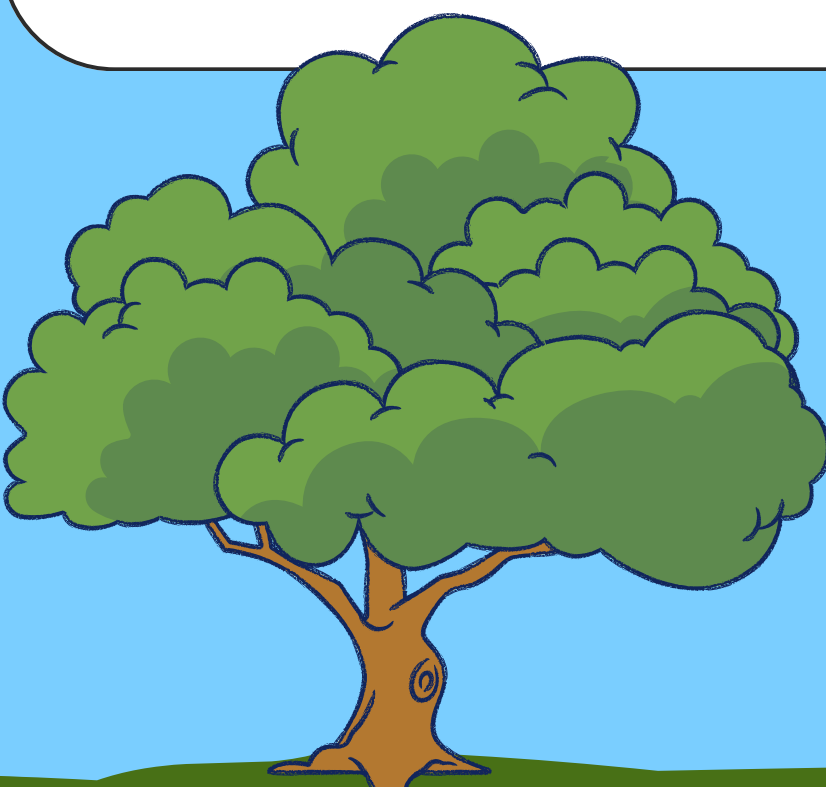

A food web shows how animals and plants in nature eat each other to survive. It helps us understand how all living things depend on each other for food in the wild.

“Consumers” are animals who eat plants and other animals.

“Producers” use sunlight to help plants grow.

“Decomposers” are living things that break down deceased plants and animals.